Are you curious about how people learn science and mathematics? Consider UCSD’s new minors in Mathematics Education and Science Education.

The new programs are suitable for anyone interested in teaching at the K-12, community college or undergraduate levels, and students interested in becoming more reflective learners. The new programs are part of California Teach, an initiative launched by the University of California and Governor Schwarzenegger to address California’s critical shortfall in secondary science and mathematics teachers.

To find out how you can be a part of California Teach, please join us for a Pizza and Information Session on either of the following days.

Monday, October 1 at 7pm in room 3500 Pacific Hall
Tuesday, October 2 at 7pm in room 3500 Pacific Hall

Please RSVP to shanafy@ucsd.edu so that we order enough pizza for everyone! 😊

Freshman seminars start week 2. More information on the new minors at:
